ALBUQUERQUE -- The U.S. Marshals Service for the District of New Mexico South West Investigative Fugitive Team task force, following an extensive fugitive investigation, today apprehended a man wanted for allegedly running over his girlfriend in northeast Albuquerque Nov. 14.

The U.S. Marshals Service in New Mexico announced Nov. 30 that it was posting a reward for up to $3,000 for information that led to the arrest of Dominic Garcia, the suspect who has a lengthy and violent criminal history.

“Deputy U.S. Marshals tirelessly and with unwavering commitment to public safety worked nonstop for the last 96 hours,” U.S. Marshal for the District of New Mexico Conrad E. Candelaria said. “Every lead was exhausted until this wanted and dangerous fugitive was arrested. The USMS task force for the district of New Mexico has and continues to prove its service to the safety of our communities in New Mexico by pursuing and arresting the most dangerous fugitives. It is my hope that the arrest of this fugitive can give the family and friends of the victim some closure and justice prevails.”

In the last year, the SWIFT task force has apprehended 20 fugitives in connection with homicide/murder charges in Albuquerque/Bernalillo County. Garcia’s arrest marks the 21st.
